The present invention relates to a variable rate control system for an internal combustion engine, and more particularly to a variable rate control system for an internal combustion engine which includes a variable valve event timing system. The engine must be controlled so that the output torque and/or output rotation speed can maintain a predetermined value. To make it meet this requirement, the engine is controlled by the ignition timing, injection timing and so forth to maintain the output torque and/or output rotation speed in a predetermined range. Variable valve events such as an ignition timing and an injection timing are usually controlled by a CAM (centralized adaptive mapping) system or a VEC (variable event control) system. Examples of these systems are disclosed in Japanese patent application laid open No. 58-34999 (JP58-34999A) and Japanese patent application laid open No. 58-125397 (JP58-125397A). FIG. 9 is a block diagram showing a typical conventional variable rate control system, which is also disclosed in the above two references. The system includes a cam position detecting means 40 which detects a cam position, a cam position controlling means 70 which controls a cam position of an internal combustion engine based on the output of the cam position detecting means 40, a spark timing controlling means 80 which controls the timing of a spark ignition, a fuel injection timing controlling means 90 which controls an injection timing for a fuel injection, a crank angle detecting means 50 which detects a crank angle of a crankshaft, an ignition timing controlling means 60 which controls an ignition timing based on the detection of the crank angle detecting means 50 and the output of the cam position controlling means 70. The relationship between the cam position and the control timings of the system are shown in FIG. 8. The pulse of a cam rotor 1 as a cam position detecting means 40 is used as a reference of time in the system. The cam position controlling means 70 controls the timing for one specific step of each of the engine control valves such as a spark timing controlling means 80 for spark ignition, a fuel injection timing controlling means 90 for fuel injection, an ignition timing controlling means 60 for an ignition timing, based on the output of the cam position detecting means 40. In the variable rate control system of the prior art, the timing, for each of the step, for each of the engine control valves, is controlled based on the output of the cam position detecting means. The engine control valves for each step are controlled based on the output of the cam position detecting means in a common

What's New in the?

Friday, 15 February 2011 I have to tell you I have an obsession with flowers. Oh yes, I'm not the only one. There are plenty of people who have quite an interest in the subject. The only difference is that I haven't the slightest idea how to create such wonderful sculptures. I'll leave you with a bit of my pictures. So, let's see what we have to offer... This one is soooo pretty. Its a chilipig. It has very long arms and legs and I love how the little head peeps out. Here is a picture of me holding a chilipig. This one is also really cute. These are also called dragonlilies and the centers of these flowers are usually pink. I love this one and I don't know if its because I've just returned from my trip to the UK or because I have so many business trip lined up that I almost got stuck in traffic while taking this picture. But here we have some very cute owls. This one is one of the things that first got me into crafting and all the other crafts. The creator of this picture use to say that she took the picture with the last remaining bullet she had in the magazine. Friday, 1 February 2011 I've been planning to do some things for a while and finally I did one last week. In my previous post I asked what I wanted to do for Valentine's day. The answer was: flowers. I thought this little guy would be the perfect Valentine's present. Now its ready for me to give it to my girl. I hope it will be a memorable one and I'm excited to see how she likes it. Until then, enjoy the pictures. This is the back view of this little guy. It would have to be a cheesy-kissy-kissy poo because it is meant to fall on a girl's head. This is how it looks on its side. It will be attached to a plastic stick with strong glue. Here is the man himself. He was so delicate to make, but he is a really strong guy as you will see in the next picture. This will be the stick on which he will sit. I hope he will be able to withstand the strong glue. Contact Us
