The Civil War Of the 1860s was the "most important war of the 19th century." It followed the War of 1812 and the War of 1856, which were far less violent than the War Of 1812 and the Mexican-American War of the 1840s. The 360 degree view feature in AutoCAD Civil 3D allows you to see each section of a building and its surroundings at any angle you choose. If you want to insert it in a drawing, you can use the 360 panorama filter . For now, that option is only available for AutoCAD Civil 3D. (video: 2:13 min.) If you insert a 360-degree view into a model, you can use the 360 interior view option . You can adjust the view in all directions by holding down the middle mouse button or shifting your mouse, and you can fly out from the center of the view by holding down the left mouse button or moving the mouse in that direction. When you insert an interior view in a 3D model, it's usually imported with a texture from the surface layer. (video: 0:54 min.) Modeling data within a 3D model is now easier than ever. Users can manage, visualize, and collaborate on 3D data as easily as 2D data. (video: 1:31 min.) Since the release of Autodesk Civil 3D R14, you can use the Get Data Into CAD command to populate models with basic attributes in an efficient way. This includes setting a scene template, and including element data for an entire building or for specific sections of a building. I upgraded from Autodesk Civil 3D R13. It was pretty easy. I loaded my old Civil 3D and it worked. I then exported my *.ace file out of Civil 3D R14 with all the embedded properties (obtained from the Wizards in Civil 3D R13) and the embedded data from my older *.ace file. I also backed up my GeoJSON data file and imported it with the import data option.
