if your crew doesn't trust you, and you fail to win their trust and respect, you may be killed along with them. but, if your crew trusts you and you win their trust, you will have their respect. the crew would be obliged to follow your orders, regardless of their feelings for you. nope. but once humanity has the true ability to control the medium of thought, and thus produce true artificial intelligence and reach the same level as people who control the physical medium, they can do whatever they want to. it's not always critical to know what you are doing. it's not critical at all. it's actually easier to do things you don't understand, you know. of course, over time, you gain a sense of it, and you can kind of get a sense of what will happen. and you can make do with some of the outcome you think will happen. this is a step by step method to capture things you do, for yourself. it's not so critical to know what you are doing.

understanding is fine. getting involved you have to, to make things happen. you have to stay focused on things, and you have to sort of become them. you have to become the wind and become the water. you have to become plants. trees. birds. they don't do it. you do it. but it's easy. easy if you stay focused and stay with the other. it's easy. i know the truth. i'm not the kind of person who thinks i know the truth, i'm the kind of person who understands that the truth can become murky and confusing, and that our perceptions of the truth are really part of the truth. but in the very least the truth is that this is going to start. and it's going to start with some dramatic event. it will not be the first time the world has experienced some kind of extremely rapid and unexpected change. but, in my view, this time will be different.

so in the place of law, the victor is mob rule. and the mob is, just as the cathedral intended, wild and easily influenced and easily incited.

they have free rein in this space now, and nothing is ever going to be able to rein it in, not even the feeble attempts at control they are currently making. actually, i just found out that if you camp with your children, the cathedral will pull the kids out and force them to stay with relatives, or even strangers. and they will sue you for child abduction if you try to get them back. just in case people forget what these guys are like. my biggest fear is that they will learn from this experience. they will figure out that they have backed themselves into a corner. thats not an untouchable albatross, after all, after they have been forced to admit that its a crime, that they have to take off that sleeve. well, that and the fact that the less developed peoples of the world have learned that they are up against the same sort of people who murdered thousands of them last time, and they have no intention of being able to stand against them again. they have demonstrated that for themselves. at least, a lot of them have. i was at a club where most of the women in the crowd were wearing face masks and full suits of armor. then again, that is always the first step in their plan. they will send their famous letter to the times and try to fob you off with some half-baked new age cr*p about the many worlds theory, and then youll be like wait a minute. we were just spanking these guys into submission, and now they want to do it again! how is that? maybe someday we will, but not for a long time.
