When I searched on software center I could see that Pycharm was installed but I could not uninstall that. It's a popular Integrated Development Environment (IDE) for Python. You can use it to rapidly write, run, test, and debug Python code. You can also use it to create GUIs. For more information, visit <https://www.jetbrains.com/pycharm/> That metapackage installs the kitchen sink by depending on the python packages jupyter-console, ipykernel, qtconsole, notebook, ipywidgets and nbconvert. Im sure PyCharm actually only needs ipykernel of those, and probably something like jupyter-server or so. New versions of PyCharm may not be available as snap packages instantly as they are released. In that case, you will have to download PyCharm from the official website of JetBrains and manually install it on Ubuntu 20.04 LTS. Weve just released the first bug-fix update for PyCharm 2022. You can update to this version from inside the IDE, by using the Toolbox App, or by using snaps for Ubuntu. You can also download it from our website. In this minor release, weve included major improvements for Python dataclass support. For the attrs package, PyCharm now recognizes modern APIs such as attrs.define, attrs.mutable, and attrs.frozen, which are treated in the same way as attrs.s, as well as attrs.
